There are over thousands of published Scientific Papers on Beta Glucan, it is one of the most studied and documented Immune Modulation. Of all supplements tested, Beta Glucan ranked at the TOP for immune system support. A few facts to know about Beta Glucan, it's an all- natural compound found in bakers yeast, mushrooms, oats, barley, and algae, as well as other sources. Beta Glucan is a long chain polysaccharide; a complex carbohydrate similar to fiber.

What does Beta Glucan do?

- Beta Glucan maintains and supports a healthy immune response by the unique activation of a key receptor on the surface of immune cells.
- Beta Glucan derived from the cell wall of Bakers Yeast (Saccharomyces Cerevisiae) has been proven to have the highest biological activity of immune response of all available sources.
- Beta Glucan's binding to CR3 (the Glucan Receptor) leads to a cascade of immune responses including but not limited to : an increase in phagocytosis, an increase in chemotaxis, an increase in white blood cell count (if suppressed) and finally it balances the immune response (th1 & th2).
